Better traction --- longer wear

The sharp-edged, diamond-shaped blocks of the famous Goodyear All-Weather Tread are placed in a semi-flat design. These grip the road firmly and retain their usefulness longer than any tread heretofore offered. They prevent skidding and sideslipping.

Long, slow, even tread wear is assured in these All-Weather balloons. "Cupping" and uneven wear, so common in many balloon tires, is eliminated.

Then, too, you have the heavy, tough carcass of SUPERTWIST, the cord that has done away with shoulder breaks -- the cord that absorbs the roughness of the going by its ability to stretch far and come right back for more. This tread and this carcass make an unbeatable combination -- one that has won for Goodyear the title of

That Indispensable Vitamin C

IPPOCRATES (400 B. C.) is authority for the statement that the effort of people to find better foods was the beginning of the science of medicine. Hippocrates was known as "the father of medicine" so he must have known something about its origin. He was a man of great nobility of character and possessed high ideals of medical ethics which have been perpetuated to the present day in the world-wide reverence of physicians for the "Hippocratic oath."  The search for better foods has also continued to the present day, accompanied by a vast development in the science of medicine. One of this science's latest discoveries is the existence of the vitamins all important to human nutrition. Of these, vitamin C is the substance, the presence of which is essential to protect mankind against the disease known as scurvy, and it has been found to be present in large quantities in oranges and tomato juice.  Tomatoes vs. Oranges  One No. 2 can of tomatoes costs 15 cents (or two for 25 cents) and produces ten ounces of inice. Three Florida oranges cost 15 cents in most seasons, and produce an equal quantity of inice. These two juices are equally potent sources of vitamin C, the only more potent	ones known being lemon and grape- fruit juice. Therefore, equal quan- tities of crange and comato juice give equal amounts of this vitamin. Two tablespoons daily of either will ensure an adult of his full require- ment of vitamin C. More is a safeguard and advisable.  Tomato Pulp Recipes  The juice from a No. 2 can of tomatoes costs far less than that from three Florida oranges, since there are many uses to be made of the nutritious tomato pulp which is left in the can when the juice is drained from it. They can be scal- loped by themselves, combined with various other veretables with edges with shrimps and crabs, used in soups, sauces, stews and hash, cambined with meats, spaghett macaroni noodles, cereal, rice and in a multitude of other ways.  Inst to give you a start on some of the many ways in which the tomato pulp can be utilized after the nuce with its valuable vitamin C has been drained off and drunk, here are a couple of recipes which will suagest many others;  Lima Berns Pulcane: Dice four slices of Lacon and fry to extract fat. Add one onion, chopped, one green by a reut in rings, and two cups diced celery. Add the inice from one No. 2 can of lima beans, and signer until the celery and	green pepper are tender. Then add two cups of canned tomato pulp and the lima beans and heat well. Pour in center of platter and surround with boiled spaghetti. Half a package will prove sufficient. Serve as a main dish with quince jelly. You will find this recipe 'sufficient to serve from six to eight.  Italian Chop Suey: Slice one medium onion, and cut one cup of celery in fine strips two inches long. Sauté the onion and celery in four tablespoons butter until vellow. Add one-half pound Hamburger steak, and cook until it begins to brown. Then add one cup canned tomato pulp, one cup canned corn, one-half cup grated cheese, and simmer until the meat is tender. Add two cups cooked spaghetti and serve as a main dish with spiced cucumber slices. This recipe, too, is sufficient for from six to eight people.  Try Some of These  You can go on from here devising your own dishes, but here are a few in which tomato pulp combines excellently: scrambled eggs, omelets, meat cakes, round steak, with meats en casserole, with kidneys and liver, with cooked cereal baked with tomato pulp and meat, with Spanish rice, and in tomato griddle cakes.*

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR PAROLE

COSBY-PEACOK—

A marriage which came as a surprise to their many friends was that of Miss Joy Cosby to Mr. Henry Peacock, which occurred Sunday morning at the home of Rev. B. S. Franklin, pastor of the Elba Baptist Church.

The wedding was a very quiet affair, with only members of the pastor's family witnessing.

Mrs. Peacock is the only daughter of Mr. J. W. Cosby. She was reared in Elba and has many friends here, who wish her happiness. She has for several years taught successfully in Coffee County schools and is at present teaching in one of the leading consolidated schools in the county.

Mr. Peacock is making his home in Montgomery, where he is employed by Segrist, Gentry Auto Co., but for several months he was connected with Rainer Motor Co. in Elba, and he won a warm circle of friends here.

Elba people extend congratulations and good wishes to this young couple.
